DETAILED ACTION

Claims examined on the merits are 1-3, which are all claims in the application.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

5 The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

10 Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

15 The claims are confusing and unclear by claim 1 claiming the carrier in terms of how the carrier is obtained, and not setting forth clear, distinct and positive process steps for a complete process.

In line 2 of claim 1, the meaning of "element polymer product" is uncertain. How does "element" define the polymer?

20 In line 2 of claim 3, a structure that is a honeycomb structure within the scope of the claim is uncertain since the structure of Fig. 4 that is disclosed in the specification to be a honeycomb structure does not appear to be the structure of a normal honeycomb.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

25 The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5       Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Japanese Patent 11-123076 in view of Japanese Patents 6-207071 and 2-131578 and 5-76365 (all listed on form PTO-1449 of 5/20/02).

The claims are drawn to a bacteria growth carrier containing a 10 trace element or a trace element and an inorganic nutrient salt for bacteria growth in a polymeric material laminated with an inorganic porous material.

Japanese Patent 11-123076 disclose a carrier for microorganisms that can be an inorganic/organic complex and a material for promoting 15 physiological activity of microorganisms which can be a metal such as copper or zinc.

Japanese Patent 6-207071 discloses a microorganism carrier formed of a gelling material such as polyvinyl alcohol.

Japanese patent 2-131578 discloses a carrier for microorganisms
20 composed of inorganic fibers

Japanese Patent 5-76365 discloses a microorganism carrier formed by fusing porous ceramic granules to thermoplastic polymer granules.

It would have been obvious to form the microorganism carrier that is an inorganic/organic complex of Japanese Patent 11-123076 by 25 forming the gel of Japanese Patent 6-207071 as a laminate on the carrier composed of inorganic fibers of Japanese patent 2-131578 as suggested by Japanese Patent 5-76365 disclosing fusing porous ceramic granules to thermoplastic polymer granules to prepare a microorganism carrier. Forming the gel on the inorganic carrier would have been expected to provide the gel with strength and provide characteristics of both the gel and inorganic carrier together. The carrier of Japanese

5 Patent 2-131578 can have a honeycomb structure, and a honeycomb structure as required by claim 2 would have been obvious. The different shapes of claim 2 would have been merely a matter of obvious choice depending on individual preference for a particular shape.
